

BellaDati Agile BI - Embedded Supply Chain Management

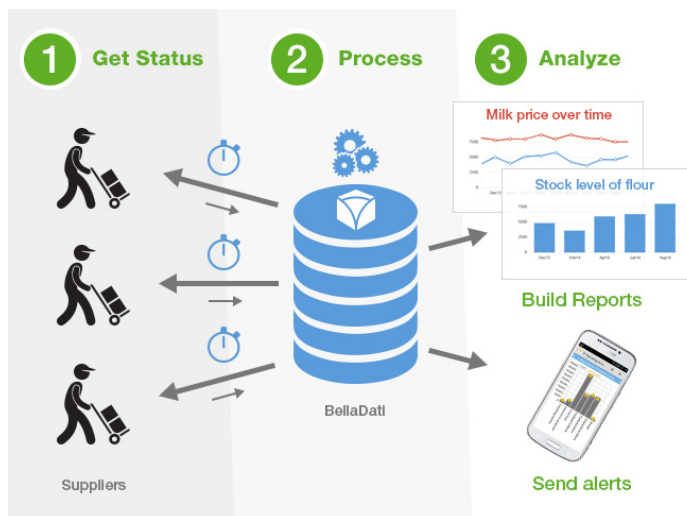

BellaBake is a bakery making pies, cupcakes and other delicious pastries by processing supplies like flour, milk and eggs from different vendors. To satisfy our customers' needs, we need to deal with the various unpredictabilities of our supply environment - whether it's fluctuating prices, stock shortages or changes in delivery schedule.

Using BellaDati, we can easily get and visualize data from our warehouse and external suppliers to track their offers and supply situation. We can aggregate data from different sources to compare prices or combine orders from multiple vendors.

Even better, since we let BellaDati load the data for us, we no longer depend on the vendor to alert us if anything goes wrong on their side. BellaDati will automatically alert us if we're dangerously low on eggs!

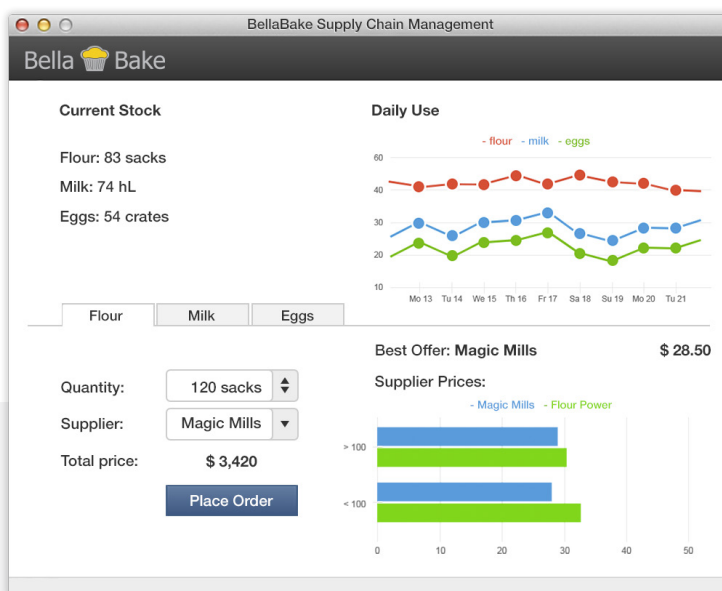

Supply Chain Management

All of this is possible just using BellaDati in your browser. By embedding key analytics, we can take our efficiency another step further!

At BellaBake, we used to make weekly phone calls to the suppliers asking about their current status and placing our orders. Of course there are lots of suppliers offering milk or flour, but we don't have enough time to call each one of them and find the best offer every time.

To save time, we have built a software that helps us place and track orders with our various suppliers. We now use the supplier data we have available in BellaDati and embed it directly into our ordering system. This way, when we want to place our order, we can at a glance see the conditions offered by the different vendors. We can even let the system make suggestions based on various criteria!

What did we gain?

With BellaDati, we can automatically receive updates on our suppliers without having to check them manually. Thanks to our embedded application, we can see the best offers, check our needs and immediately place an order - all accessible on the same screen!

Our supply process has become a lot easier and more transparent. We can save time and money by easily comparing many vendors before taking the best offer!
